

Survey on Third Level Education: Technical Education, Vocational and Ecclesiastic Education, Higher Educational Institutes.

DESCRIPTION

The certain survey is conducted according to the directives of international organizations (UNESCO, OECD etc. The method that is applied for the collection of data is the census method, with a classification of the grade and the type of education.

The sampling unit of the certain survey, in which the respective questionnaire is sent, for filling, is the "school unit" with the broader sense of the word as an educational unit. In the third degree educational institutions, apart from the above questionnaire, which includes mostly aggregated data of the unit, a second one is completed, which is individual oriented for each one of the students. The completion of the specific questionnaire, is done by the student himself, during his enrolment to the educational institution. By this way becomes potential the collection of personal data, that can be used to obtain the distribution of the so called socio-economic characteristics of the educated students. For these reasons the collected data are appeared only as aggregated data of the distribution, of the certain population of educated students
